When de breeze is gittin' balmy an' de sky is kind o' blue,
An' de trees is gittin' ready fo' blossom out a few,
An' de latins comes tricklin' 't'm you hold down to yoh feet,
An' nuthin' cep't a good long rest seems pennyswainly sweet—
Oh! it's den you gotter hustle, same as if de front air
Was settin' 'pon a steppin', an' you didn't so much care,
De sunshin on der water telegraphs you fo' to shirk,
An' 'yon oter be a loasin'—but you gotter go to work.

I's often had it presch' to me—dar's times fo' ev'ry thing;
Dar's times fo' honest labor, an' dar's times to dance an' sing,
An' it aint seem to me, betwix de springtime an' de fall,
Dat de time fo' yoh loasin' is de special time o' all.

An' dar's why I'm gittin' heavy, jes' as heavy as kin be;
An' yoh's staggered by de handshaps dat in dis existence lurk,
When you oter be a loasin' an' 'yon has to go to work.
